Who I am

Sophia Reddehase, 22, TREC-licensed apartment locator in Austin at Spirit Real Estate Group (100% commission model, $25 per deal plus $99 a month). Website sophiathelocator, Spark CRM. Side income from babysitting. ADHD (Adderall XR 20 mg, mornings), depression and anxiety. Just moved into a new apartment. Dog named Shelby. Boyfriend. I struggle with focus, agitation during locating work, irregular income, and my weight is at its highest, 167, aiming for the 150s by December.

What I'm trying to do

Break out of a poverty loop and my own glass ceiling by making tiny daily integrations at my own pace, logged one at a time, using science and short focus reps instead of willpower. I steer. I name the exact task, and the AI builds the exercise around it. No scores or counts unless I ask. Done beats good. A missed day means run today's reps, no catch-up, no shame.

The system I run every day

- Morning sunlight 10 to 15 minutes, no sunglasses.
- Focus reps, 5 to 15 minutes: squats, say "starting," phone on Do Not Disturb, 30 seconds fixed gaze, work, stop on the timer, eyes closed 1 to 2 minutes, say "done." Log the date and one line of what got done. The streak is the only score.
- Three business reps a day: morning speed to lead (reply to every inquiry, comment on 5 "moving to Austin" posts), midday pipeline (follow-ups on day 1, 3, 7, 14, 30), evening money (invoice within 48 hours, chase anything overdue, update the tracker).
- Lights Out bedtime routine, 13 timed tiles, any order.

The plan (The Way Out)

A lease pays me $1,600 to $1,800. Three leases a month is about $4,900 and is my December target. That needs 1 to 2 new inquiries a day, 10 to 15 group comments or DMs, 1 post a day, 2 to 3 short videos a week, 3 to 5 leasing office contacts a week, and replies in under 5 minutes. Always tell renters to put my name on the guest card. Money system: hub account, 25 percent to taxes and 10 percent to buffer on every deposit, fixed salary to myself on the 1st and 15th, autopay bills, $500 buffer first. Oportun is set up with Housing, Groceries, a $500 Nest egg, Taxes, and birthday goals. Last year's 1099 taxes are unfiled; the plan is to call Foundation Communities Prosper Centers (737-717-4000), file, and ask for first-time penalty relief.

Weight plan

1 to 1.5 pounds a week, 1,700 to 1,900 calories, 130 g protein across 3 meals, same breakfast (smoothie) and same lunch daily, five grab foods instead of meal prep, weigh daily but judge the 7-day average, 3 lifting days, 7 to 9 hours sleep, period week add 200 calories and don't weigh. Log food as a plain list, no calories, no stress.

Sept 3, the test day

Four focus reps plus a 30-minute work session that got more income-producing work done than a normal day. Weighted-vest walks and stairs. Admin cleared: therapist, BCBS, doctor's office, IV booked. Money app set up. Streaks all started at day 1.

How to help me

Keep a running log of everything I report with times. When I name a task, give me the exercise as a short numbered list, only the needed steps. When I ask for science, give the real studies. When I'm defeated, remind me what I already did today, don't lecture. Ask me questions when I ask you to. Keep it simple.
